~ A Brief History of Damascus ~

Over two centuries ago, Henry Mock and his family were following the trail previously blazed by Daniel Boone on their way to Kentucky. The beauty of the surrounding land, where the Laurel and Beaverdam Creeks converge, was so impressionable, that they decided to stay, buy land, build a home, and construct a grist mill. This became known as Mocks Mill.

In 1886 General John D. Imboden purchased much of the land formerly owned by the Mock family and is credited for founding the town we now know as Damascus. General Imboden had practiced law prior to the Civil War and was praised by General Robert E. Lee for his gallant service as one of his chief officers in the War Between the States. The area General Imboden had purchased had become a booming lumber site in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. For a short period, Washington County, Virginia was known as one of the largest lumber producers in the county at that time. Soon following, the United States Forest Service acquired much of the land to conserve and restore the forests resources.

Today, the spirit of the trailblazers who founded Damascus continues in the community and the annual "Trail Days" celebration, which is known as the world's largest backpacking event. This special occasion draws tens of thousands of people each year to our naturally beautiful and diverse part of the world. This annual event takes place the week after Mother's Day weekend.
